STATE WILL BE ASKED TO REBUILD BRIDGES TAKEN BY ICE FLOOD

WILL PROCEED UNDER ACT WHICH PUTS RESPONSIBILITY FOR REPLACING FLOOD- DESTROYED BRIDGES UPON STATE

COMMISSIONERS TAKE FIRST STEP

The County Commissioners of Clearfield have already begun the preliminary work incident to the replacing of the Deer Creek and Rollingstone bridges across the Susquehanna which were destroyed by the ice flood on Saturday morning last.

It is expected that both bridges will be constructed at the expense of the state under the provisions of an amended Act of Assembly dated April 21, 1903. This act provides among other things as follows: "From and after the passage of this Act the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall from time to time rebuild all bridges maintained, owned and controlled by the several counties and known as county bridges which are now or may hereafter be erected over and across the navigable rivers and such other streams as have been declared public highways by Act of Assembly, which may hereafter be carried away or destroyed by flood or windstorm, and rebuild the same in case the same are again carried away or destroyed from like cause."

This law also provides that following the destruction of a bridge by flood, such as occurred Saturday, the County Commissioners may petition the court of Dauphin County to appoint viewers to view the situation and report back to the court on the same. The petition must set out the location of the bridge and the necessity therefor together with an estimate of the cost of the erection of such new bridge.

The Dauphin county court shall thereupon appoint five viewers, one of whom shall be an engineer and not more than two of whom shall be residents of the county wherein the bridge is to be located. After making their view, the viewers will report their finding to the court, which shall be passed upon by the court and from which finding either the county or state may appeal within thirty days. When satisfactory to both parties the court shall then direct the state to proceed at once and let contracts for the rebuilding of the said bridge, all expense of same to be borne by the state.

County Engineer G. A. Flink, of Harrisburg, arrived in Clearfield yesterday and accompanied by the County Commissioners went down to Deer Creek and Rollingstone this morning for the purpose of making the necessary estimate of the cost of constructing the two bridges.

County Solicitor A. H. Woodward has already prepared the petition and when the estimate of cost is supplied the petition will be presented in the Dauphin county court with a request to expedite the proceedings as rapidly as possible.

This will be good news to Clearfield county taxpayers and should and no doubt will result in the prompt rebuilding of these necessary bridges.

The Humphrey bridge across the river between Curwensville and Lumber City was built in 1889 by the state at the request of the county under the original law quoted above.

WHERE TO PAY YOUR INCOME TAX

Yesterday The Progress carried a notice that the income tax collector would be in Clearfield on Friday, Saturday and Monday to assist taxables to make out their returns and receive taxes and that he would sit in the council rooms of the Borough building.

We are advised this morning that the income tax man will be here as advertised but that he will occupy the office of the Clearfield Trust Company where he will be pleased to meet anybody who desires assistance in the making of returns.

The making of your income tax return is a very important matter which if neglected will lay you open to a heavy fine. Give that matter your attention today. Remember that you must make a return if your earnings during the last year have been: $1000 for single men or women or $2000 for married men or women. You may have earned a great deal more than this and not have to pay a tax by reason of deductions but you must make the return.

Don't forget the time and the place: Friday, Saturday and Monday at the Clearfield Trust Company.

WILL WILSON BE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

Democratic Dopesters Do Not
Know What To Say Until President States His Position

McADOO MAKES STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, March 10—Whether Woodrow Wilson is an active candidate for a third term; a passive candidate, or intends to withdraw entirely from the race was today an extremely acute question in political circles, but one that gave evidence of being answered within the next few days.

The political situation, so far as the Democrats are concerned, was considerably clarified this afternoon when William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and perhaps the foremost Democratic candidate, committed himself publicly for the first time on the treaty in an exclusive statement to Universal Service. Mr. McAdoo said:

"I have always been for the ratification of the treaty without reservations so that we might enter the league of nations on a basis of equality with everyone else; but if there are to be reservations I believe they should be merely interpretative so that the text will not be changed."

It will thus be seen that Mr. McAdoo views the treaty in exactly the same mind as does the President and if the latter feels that his health is such to prevent him from engaging in a campaign for a third nomination, Mr. McAdoo might easily be his standard bearer. But until the President makes some definite announcement on the subject of a third term, the capital will have to bear the embarrassment of his silence.

Persons who advocate the nomination of A. Mitchell Palmer, the only administration leader who has an active campaign committee, declare the President "is out of the race."

The supporters of Mr. McAdoo, who has no organization that is functioning openly, take the position that under certain circumstances the President might be forced to run, and the lieutenants of Wm. Jennings Bryan and many other possible candidates who are waiting to determine their course of action say the President is a candidate and moreover they insist that his candidacy will mean party suicide.

Out of the McAdoo, Palmer, Bryan clan, there will come, possibly within the next week, action that will have a decided effect on the Democratic campaign. Mr. Bryan will be in Washington next week and he will spend his 60th birthday, which occurs March 19, in this city. Unless the President is heard from by then, the Commoner and his followers will declare war on a third term. Their petition will be that the President is through, that he failed to win his treaty fight, and that it is up to him to assist in securing harmony in the party ranks by eliminating himself rather than to bring chaos by putting himself forward.

From a source well within the circle of those who smile on the attorney general it was learned today that Mr. Palmer believes he has forced a declaration from the men who advise and consult with the President; that upon the expiration of the treaty fight, one way or another he will declare he no longer has political ambition. At a dozen meetings held here recently by Democratic leaders—and one of the sessions was for the purpose of presenting the treasury of the Democratic national committee—the question of the President's plans has been discussed. The party leaders have been almost unanimous in their declaration that the President could not overcome the third term bugaboo and many of them have not hesitated to say that it "would be most unfortunate."

WOMEN'S CLUB HOST TO DISTINGUISHED VISITORS TUESDAY

The Woman's Club banquet held at the DuMeling Hotel on Tuesday evening was a brilliant and successful affair, both from a standpoint of numbers and the fine speeches made by the speakers of the evening. Seventy-one covers were laid. The table decorations of yellow jonquils and daisies presented a most attractive and unimpaired appearance as the women found their places at the tables.

Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown, President of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women and Mrs. Joseph H. Boviard, of Bradford, were the guests of honor.

Mrs. James P. O'Laughlin performed the duties of toastmistress in a most gracious and charming manner. Mrs. Philip Reed, Vice President of the Woman's Club, in the absence of Mrs. Harry Boulton, President, welcomed the guests and club members in a few vivacious and cordial words of greeting. Miss Dibert's response on "Citizenship" was a heart to heart talk on the duties as well as the privileges which will be ours as soon as we obtain the vote, and the need of education in fundamentals and on the issues of the day, so that we may use our new power to the welfare of our community and of our nation. Miss Dibert also urged that every club should have its own club house where the members would bring their work their problems and tie up all of the women's activities under one head; a meeting place and a place of recreation and study for the young people of the town.

Mrs. E. C. Reeve told of the Junior Extension Work which is being carried on for and by the young people in many clubs as a section or department of the older club.

Mrs. Joseph H. Boviard's response to the toast "Community Activities for Club Workers" touched on war memorials and rather deplored the fact that we seem to be forgetting so soon the lessons we learned during the war. With our boys "over there" our lives took on a new aspect. Material things no longer mattered and we carried on with those boys with heart, soul and hands. Are we going to stop now? All those boys fought for a common cause. We should work for this common cause that it may be preserved. The question is not, shall we do it, but, when shall we begin? How shall we know that we remember what they did for us? We want to show our appreciation and we want the thing to be so fine and splendid that no fault can be found with it. It shall be for all of the public. A community house would be a splendid thing, or a public library. But Mrs. Boviard emphasized particularly that now is the time to act, because as we get further and further away from the war we are apt to become more forgetful and unappreciative of the sacrifices made for us.

Mrs. Charles Kurtz gave a distinct and carefully prepared report of the Northwestern District Conference at Ridgway, February 26 and 27, outlining for the home club the fine enthusiasm and splendid work done in this past year along many lines by the women of the ten neighboring counties. A general discussion of possibilities for club work in Clearfield was participated in by several members. Stress was laid upon increased membership which will make it possible for the club to do bigger things. After singing the Pennsylvania Federation's song: "Hail, Pennsylvania, Loyal and True. Thy Daughters concentrate their lives anew; Birthplace of Liberty, May Truth keep us free, Dear Pennsylvania, we sing of Thee." the women adjourned with a feeling that they had spent a most pleasant and profitable evening.

WRIGHT McENALLY DEAD

Wright McEnally, son of the late Joseph B. and Amelia McEnally, passed away at the Clearfield Hospital at 11:30 o'clock last night, after an illness extending over a period of several months. The deceased was born in Clearfield August 5, 1861. He never married and was the last surviving member of his immediate family.

The funeral will be held from the home of his aunt, Mrs. E. A. Bigler, on Second street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Hillcrest cemetery.

Dr. F. D. Leopold transacted business at Altoona today.

GIFFORD PINCHOT HEADS FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

Prominent Pennsylvania With National Reputation Is Called
By Governor Sprout

NEW ERA IN CONSERVATION

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 10—Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester of the United States, was today appointed commissioner of forestry of Pennsylvania, to succeed Robert S. Conklin, who resigned. Mr. Conklin was appointed a member of the state water supply commission.

The Pennsylvania forest reserve comprises more than a million and a quarter acres and it is Governor Sprout's plan to greatly expand them during the remainder of his administration. Mr. Pinchot assumes his new duties at once.

In commenting upon Mr. Pinchot's appointment, Governor Sprout said: "I have commended Mr. Pinchot's services. We have in him a citizen of the state who is the foremost figure in forestry in the United States and I thought that we should have the benefit of his service here at home. Mr. Pinchot has been used to handling national problems, but Pennsylvania is an empire in itself. When one considers that this state contains more people than all of the eleven western line of the Dakotas, extended clear through to the Gulf of Mexico, and in which most of the United States forestry work has been done, the magnitude of the opportunity for public benefit in a constructive forestry program in the Keystone state will be realized.

Pennsylvania and the six states bordering upon it contain about 30 per cent. of the entire population of the union, and our state forests which will soon be accessible by good roads, will be a benefit to all of these people. Our forestry work is one of the inspiring problems before us and Mr. Pinchot's enthusiasm for this work and his devotion to it are recognized everywhere. I am glad that we have been able to call him into the service of Pennsylvania and we will all stand by him in his progressive plans for the protection and development of our forest area. There is no politics in his appointment. He and I sometimes do not agree in our politics and may not in the future but we do agree in our desire to serve the state and in our belief that good public service is the best political asset.

"There is no reflection upon Mr. Conklin in the change. I have stated to him that no criticism which has ever reached me of his department has reflected in any way upon his official integrity, or his personal honor. I have transferred him to the water supply commission, a place with which he is entirely familiar and which will be very agreeable to him, he being particularly well-qualified for this work by long experience.

The Red-Hot Purpose.

That which dominates the life, which is ever uppermost in the mind, generally comes somewhere near realization; but there is a great difference between a lukewarm desire and a red-hot purpose. It takes steam to drive the piston in the engine; warm water will never turn the wheels. The longings that fall of realization are usually just below the boiling point.—Orison Swett Marden.

Effective Holder for Pens.

A good-looking old-fashioned desk with rose-colored appointments was lacking a holder for pens, pencils, etc. An ingenious person substituted a rose pottery flower holder which came with a flower bowl. With a goodly assortment of pens, including a good looking quill, this holder was very effective. A blue flower holder can be used in a room where blue predominates.

Elms

No natural Gothic arch compares with that formed by two American elms, where their lofty jets of foliage shoot across each other's ascending curves, to intermingle their showery flakes of green. When one looks through a long double row of these, he beholds a temple not built with hands, fairer than any minster, with all its clustered stems and fluttering capitals, that ever grew in stone.—Holmes.

WETS PREPARING TO ELECT WET CONGRESSMEN IN ALL DISTRICTS

WASHINGTON, March 11—A vigorous campaign to wrest Congress from the control of the prohibitionists and replace it with men favoring light wine and beer is being planned by the "wets" throughout the country it was learned today. The Supreme Court's decision on the 18th Amendment and the Volstead law which is expected to be handed down within a few weeks will determine how extensive the campaign will be. Should the Court hold that Congress has the right to define what is intoxicating as it did in the Volstead law by fixing the amount of alcohol the campaign of the "wets" then is expected to be started to replace the ultra-prohibitionists in Congress with men favoring light wine and beer. If this is successful the Volstead law could be easily amended so that 3 1/2 per cent. beer could be legalized.

C. C. A. A. WILL HOLD ELECTION OF PERMANENT OFFICERS TONIGHT

If you are a man, a red blooded man with a desire to see all kinds of sports and athletic games and exhibitions sponsored and protected by level and honest management, you will have an opportunity this evening at seven thirty to lend your aid to such an aim.

The first regular meeting of the Clearfield County Athletic Association will be held tonight at that hour at the town hall. At this meeting the association will elect its officers for the ensuing year. The principal point of interest is the preliminary and an effort is being made to elect a prominent Clearfield citizen who is capable of running the association in a efficient, business-like manner.

New membership applications are being received every day and a fine turnout is expected at the election this evening.

Be there and become a member before the election is called. Remember that seven thirty is the time and the court room the place.

HOOVER EXPECTED TO CORROBORATE SIMS CHARGES AGAINST DANIELS

WASHINGTON, March 10—Herbert Hoover, federal food administrator, will be asked to testify in behalf of Eugene Daniels Sims before the Senate Naval Affairs committee investigating the Daniels-Sims controversy. Sims today requested the committee to call Hoover and Chairman Hale stated he would do so. It is probable that Hoovers consent was obtained before Sims made the request. Sims wants Hoover to corroborate his charges regarding the deplorable situation of the Allies when war entered the war. He said Hoover gave him "his impression of the possible defeat of the Allies" during a conference in London shortly after he arrived. Sims today made a disclosure that in July 1917 he urged Secretary Daniels to send more American ships to British waters. Daniels, the records showed, would not entertain such an idea.

ALLIED MILITARY OCCUPATION OF TURKEY IS BEING CONSIDERED

LONDON, March 10—Extensive military occupation of Turkey with more drastic measures if necessary was believed a certainty in peace conference circles here today. Premier Venizelos, it was understood, has offered to put the Greek troops at the disposal of the Allies if they are needed. Venizelos it was said made his offer to the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers Wednesday. It probably will be accepted. General Malet, the British commander would have charge of these troops. Allied leaders denied reports of extensive and bloody clashes between Allied and Turkish troops in Constantinople but it was admitted that the Allied troops carried out impressive military demonstrations.

PITTSBURGH DISTRICT COAL PRODUCTION SMALL

PITTSBURGH, March 10—Coal production in the Pittsburgh district in February was only 57 per cent. of the total capacity of the mines, figures given out by the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association showed. A total of 1,883,000 tons of coal was mined or approximately 75,000 tons less than in January. These figures are from 145 mines representing about 90 per cent. of the mines in this district. The coal car shortage which has been improvement is more acute now than at any time during the past six months, R. W. Gardner, head of the association said today.

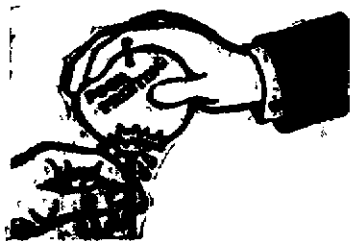

TREATY STILL SHOWS SIGNS OF LIFE

WASHINGTON, March 11—Unless the Republican Senators spurn the overtures being made by the Democrats the treaty will have a chance to vote on the Watson-Simmons compromise reservation to Article Ten it was apparent today. Renewal of negotiations is considered likely to prolong the present peace treaty situation. Simmons said today that the proposed compromise will be offered unless Republicans "form" a closed corporation against any modification which Senator Lodge himself has not sponsored.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A few years before the death of A. H. Irwin, he, in connection with several other gentlemen, made a proposition to the people of this town, that, had it been carried out, would have proven a great benefit to the young people as well as to the town itself. His suggestion was that the citizens of the town go together and get a long lease on the Pee-Wee's nest grounds from the owner, Mr. H. M. Irwin, which could have been secured at that time. The grounds and grove, which include many acres, were to be thoroughly cleaned up by removing the dead stuff and brush; a dam, four feet in height, was to have been built across the river, backing water enough for boating and bathing purposes; some half dozen small bath booths to be built conveniently near the river bank and some boats placed in the water; a house built for the residence of the caretaker; two bridges thrown across the gully at the springs which would connect the grounds proper with a large cleared field that could be converted into a ball park tennis grounds; a driveway of a mile or more in length made. Some few other improvements were to be added from time to time as their need was felt. It was figured that all of these things could be accomplished for the sum of $5,000. It is only about a ten-minute walk from the center of the town to these grounds, and with a dancing pavilion, bathing, tennis, base ball, etc., the young people would not lack for somewhere to go in the afternoons and evenings for enjoyments suitable to their tastes. On the other hand, by charging a nominal sum for use of boats, bath booths and permits for camping parties, the expense of keeping up the grounds, buildings, etc., would have assisted greatly in meeting the nominal expenses. As one of our large business men said to the writer the other day, "The town made a great mistake when it did not go ahead and follow out Mr. Irwin's suggestion." Many camping parties come to Curwensville every summer and spend weeks, and some of them the summer months camping along the river on or near the above mentioned grounds. Mr. Irwin's plan was a good one and not a costly one either, and had it been carried out, would have been an inducement to bring many summer visitors to this place. Out of door exercise is what the young folks want and what they need for healthfulness, and very few if any want to be housed up during the summer afternoons or evenings. It would be well enough to again talk this matter as we are marching along toward an industrial boom, and instead of putting $25,000 or $30,000 into a Community House, which the town is not ripe for yet, financially, carry out Mr. Irwin's plan at a cost of not more than $6,000, and we venture the assertion that the citizens will be surprised what good and efficient results will follow in a short time.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid in meat which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

TO GUARD AGAINST INFLUENZA

Don't let the dread influenza get you. If you have the slightest cough or cold, better begin using Foley's Honey and Tar at once. Henry Wallis, Sandy Point, Texas, is one of many thousands who consider this remedy "just fine." He says: "I suffered severely with a bad cough, after using four or five dollars' worth of different medicines decided to try Foley's Honey and Tar. One bottle gave relief. Best medicine I ever used." Contains no opiates. Sold everywhere.

Governor Sproul's appointment of Gifford Pinchot to head the State Department of Forestry will be hailed with approval by every Pennsylvanian. Mr. Pinchot is the logical man for the place. He has made forestry and conservation a life study and his experience as a federal official in this same line of work fits him for the position. The governor has, by this appointment, shown himself to be above the petty jealousies of politics. Pinchot has been a radical dissenter from what is generally termed regular Republicanism in that he has often seen fit to oppose his party leaders. Forestry and conservation will enter a new era under Pinchot and it is gratifying to see the governor draw into his official family one more of the most capable men of the commonwealth.

A Woodland citizen contributes an article today on the schools of that town. The Editor heartily seconds the sentiments expressed by this Woodland citizen who has taken the lead in a campaign for better school conditions for Bradford township. While we believe a township high school would be ideal for Bradford township and we recognize that many young men and women of that township are terribly handicapped because of their inability to stand transportation expenses to the Clearfield High school it must not be forgotten that a township high school will entail much higher school expenses and not provide for one of the major requirements of the township, viz: decent buildings and surroundings for the younger school children. The children of Woodland deserve better treatment at the hands of Bradford township citizens than they are getting. The fault is not with the school board. It is up to the citizens to demand that those old antiquated buildings be torn down and modern, healthful buildings be erected.

FEW TOOLS NEEDED FOR THE HOME GARDEN

Thrift gardens should be thrift gardens from start to finish, and the vegetables grown in them should not cost as much as it would cost to buy them on the market. Every item of expense should be kept down. This is especially true in the purchase of tools according to United States Department of Agriculture specialists. Some gardeners have an idea that they must have a large assortment of hoes rakes wheel hose, seed drills, spraying outfits and special equipment before they can begin a garden. But the tools actually required in the cultivation of a thrift garden are few and simple. A spade or spading fork, a steel rake and a hoe, together with a piece of string and two small wooden stakes, are the chief essentials. There are a number of other tools, such as a trowel, sprinkling can, wheel hoe, seed drill and wheelbarrow that may often be used to advantage, but they are not absolutely necessary.

It is important, however, that the few essential tools be properly cared for and used frequently. Every time they are used they should be cleaned and stored in a dry place. Also, they should be kept sharp so that the work may be done easily and thoroughly. A good job of hoeing can not be done with a dull or rusty hoe.

If the garden is located at a distance from the house, a small, low, flat tool box, long enough to accommodate the hoe and rake, should be provided. The top of this box may be covered with a piece of roofing paper to make it waterproof, and a small lock should be provided for safety. The loss of one good tool will more than offset the cost of a toolbox of this character.

A most interesting question was propounded to us today. Namely: How many veterans of the Civil War are there living in Clearfield county? We cannot answer. It has been variously estimated at from one hundred to one hundred and fifty. We hope to be able to print a list of those in this community within the next day or two and then we will ask our readers to supply us with the names of those whom we have missed. When the list is published it will be added to until all these valiant men are listed.

Women And The HOME ACCOUNT

Because women usually conduct the home finances, and because the beginning of thrift is in the home, it is well for them to link their plans with a good bank.

A bank account for the home relieves the housewife of having correct change, sending and risking cash, disputes over accounts, etc. Pay by check—it's the better way.

Come here. We think our bank is a good bank for women and the home account.

CHAPTER XII.

As he crossed the threshold of the long, overdecorated drawing-room, he knew intuitively that he had entered upon a climax. This he sensed from the attitude of the three who turned toward him as he entered—turned before he saw what was in their eyes. The atmosphere was vibrant, as though from sound waves which had passed beyond, and yet left traces of the swell behind them. The room was silent; but of a silence more confounding than a deafening turmoil.

Hilliard, standing on the threshold, was himself the center of this atmosphere; he felt it partly because his mood was so flexible and partly because the three who faced him had simultaneously thrown their fixed attention on him, thrown it directly and challengingly, including him in the finale of the climax, while they stood motionless as statues. He looked at Waring, whose expression was definitely acute; he looked at Angela, flushed, plump, and excited; he looked at Mr. Cullen, tight-lipped and frowning; and Hilliard caught his breath as a swimmer who launches himself to a high dive, and walked composedly into the drawing-room.

"I hope," he said gravely, "I'm not intruding. Am I?"
"The trio was galvanized into action: Cullen fairly leaped at him, 'Hilliard!' he said, 'thank the Lord! You're the very man we want!'"
Hilliard smiled straight into Cullen's eyes.

"That's why I'm here," he said.
Waring laughed loudly—too loudly; and the laugh stopped short, for Cullen was towering over him—Cullen blazing with indignant wrath, and with a hand resting on Hilliard's shoulder.
"Now go on," said Cullen commandingly. "We don't want any under-handed work around here. Rufus, I've told you that once already. Go on! say it to his face! You're conversational enough behind his back—say it to his face! Either you tell him or I will!"
The boy wiped his forehead. Bends of sweat stood out on it.
"Mr. Cullen . . . It isn't . . . It isn't fair . . ."

NEW MUSKRAT LAW BRINGS LOSS TO YOUNG TRAPPERS

HARRISBURG, March 8.—Charging that a loss of hundreds of dollars through the sale of muskrat pelts will result during March, trappers of the state are severely criticizing the state law closing the season for trapping that animal March 1. At the present time, the trappers assert, the market is bringing a price higher than it ever before reached and thru the law the muskrat is protected and the trapper the loser. Fur markets are offering as high as $5 to $6 for the muskrat pelts this year.

In other states the complaining trappers say, the closed season is not reached until April 1 or April 15, which allows a month or six weeks before the weather is too warm for trapping this animal. Under the present law they are given ordinarily but two or three weeks to trap before the streams freeze over and prevent further operations until the spring breakup occurs, it is complained.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Turpentine. My little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Turpentine and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opi-

SPRING STYLES ARE HARD ON BUXOM MAID AND MATRON

The Spring styles all for slim folks are

And so to get more thin, The fatties, dieting and stunts, Do desperately begin.

NEW YORK, March 11.—It's really no use if you are one of those three-hundred-on-the-hoof figures to hope to carry off with any degree of chic one of those girlish little Eton jacket suits. As for the happy, hippy flounced and pannered taffeta frock model or the pleated skirt and separate slip on blouse effect the sedately who persuades one on your plump personality should be shot at sunrise.

Yet the fat female MUST wear something and when she is panting to be smart as well as panting with embonpoint, it is a cruel fate that fashion should design exclusively for willow wand figures this Spring. There is simply only one way Fatima may hope to scale the heights sartorially and that is to tip the scales less ponderously.

She has tried "Eat and grow Thin" electric treatments, rubber garments and Swedish massage, Turkish baths, violet rays and nauseating Java herb rostrums. And now she is a devout and portly devotee at the shrine of a reduction specialist who reduces speedily, painlessly and without the aid of a net, a diet or calisthenics. No wonder the waiting room of this modern miracle man is filled to overflowing with overflowing females. Buxom beauties bustle up his doorsteps in puffing throngs and pass down again less ponderously as well; by week they shed their little two to three pounds per. By taking a magic little capsule three times daily their fat melts off merrily despite unrestricted orgies amongst the fleshpots and the pastries, the lambons and the mayonnaises. The strength of this magic little capsule is increased weekly by the simple expedient of the doctor telephoning the prescription to a nearby pharmacy.

There's never a scrap of paper, a written word, to spoil the delicious and intriguing mystery of the dose. That's probably the reason that the plump patients don't understand why with every five pounds loss they gain a year of age, why with every ounce off there's a wrinkle on. For the favorite motto of the reducing doctor is "A little thyroid makes the whole world thin," only he goes it one better and adds "and a lot of thyroid makes 'em thin quick." So the answer to this get-thin-quick method is spelled thyroid with a capital T and when the patients have reduced sufficiently to fit the Spring styles they are also reduced to a fit state for a sanitarium.

Alas, it is a hopeless and sad verity that there is no easy short cut to slender lines. Only by a Spartan foregoing of all gastronomic delights and a dogged persistence at exercise may you jettison off a superfluous pound or two.

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

PORTRAYS HER HEROINE'S LIFE

Mary Miles Minter, who is being starred in "Anne of Green Gables" herself for years an admirer of the L. M. Montgomery "Anne" stories, portrays Annie Shirley just as the author described her.

Anne Shirley, an orphan, is sent to "Green Gables" the home of Marilla and Matthew Cuthbert, a New England spinster and her farmer brother in response to a request from them that a boy be sent. They accept Anne who proves a mischievous girl whose pranks stir the villagers. She grows up and is graduated from the Academy with honors. Matthew's plan to send her to college is thwarted when he has financial reverses resulting in his death. Anne obtains a position to teach, and with her meager earnings engages a specialist to operate on Marilla's eyes. Throughout the picture Anne has difficulties with a family named Pie. Her final triumph over them and the prospect of her marriage with a boyhood sweetheart close the picture.

Will be shown at Liberty theatre Friday afternoon at a matinee two showings 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. also one showing at night previous to wrestling match.

STATE ANNOUNCES MONEY AWARDS TO RURAL TOWNSHIPS

HARRISBURG, March 10.—The State Highway Department has announced the proportion in which $1,000,000 appropriated by the 1919 legislature for payment of state rewards to township supervisors is to be apportioned. The old system of bonuses to townships has been abolished and in its place comes the method of distributing rewards for work actually accomplished by townships in road improvement.

The appropriation of $1,000,000 has been apportioned among the various counties according to the miles of roads in townships of the second class. This mileage is compiled from map surveys made by the township division of the State Highway Department. There are a total of 74,875 miles of township roads in townships of the second class. The distribution is at the rate of $13.35 per mile. Second class townships are not entitled to any part of this reward until they comply with the state law governing the new system.

The mileage of township roads together with the amount apportioned to Clearfield county is 1539 miles amounting to $21,889.81.

ing a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

to Waring. "We're going to get at the bottom of this sooner or later—and the sooner the better. I'm waiting for you to repeat what you just told us, Rufus."

There were tears of anger in the low student's eyes—of anger and of impotence. He gave Angela a look of superb disdain, shrugged his shoulders. "Well, that settles that," he said, and as Angela gave a gasp of understanding, and turned angrily white, he laughed metallically.

Cullen moved nearer to him.

"Are you going to speak up or not? Because if you aren't—"

Waring folded his arms; but he still failed of the pose he planned, because his eyes and his muscles were traitor to him.

"No, I'm not! Not until I'm ready to! I'm not afraid of the whole crowd of you! I'm not going to be bullied and bulldozed into—"

He attempted to brush past Cullen, the older man caught him by the arm. "Take your hands off me!"

"You stay where you are!" stormed Cullen. "Until you can—"

"If you lay your hands on me once more, Mr. Cullen, I'll . . . don't you forget I know what this means! I'll have you—"

"Oh, your law!" Cullen snorted it contemptuously. "For God's sake, don't snivel about it . . . stand up and take it like a man. If you've got any manhood in you! For a law student you're . . . well, don't try to run away from it, then. . . . Are you going to tell him, or am I?"

The answer was delayed; Cullen swung around to Hillard. "Then I'll tell you myself. Know what this boy's been saying about you? Coming up to us when you're not here, and trying to knife you when you're not looking?"

Hillard, who had been standing paralyzed, found voice.

"Why, I can guess," he said, curiously calm. "And don't be harsh with him, Mr. Cullen. As a matter of fact—"

Angela had sprung between them; Hillard saw that her cheeks were tear-stained.

"It's nothing but jealousy!" she cried vehemently. "He's said horrible things about you! He's always saying things about you! He said—"

"Angela!" Cullen almost fairly shouted it. "I tell you, this is my house, and I won't have any more of this infernal nonsense in it! Hear me? I've had all the nonsense I'm going to stand from anybody! Rufus, you stay right there! Angela, you keep quiet!"

PROHIBITION AND MORTALITY

The large number of deaths recently caused by the drinking of wood alcohol should not, says the Journal of the American Medical Association (Chicago), lead the public to overlook the important drop in the death rate from certain causes that has followed the legal prohibition of alcoholic beverages. It goes on: "Recent statistics show that for July, August and September, 1919, the number of deaths in Boston from alcoholism amounted to only seven as compared with 31, 46, 38 and 34 for the corresponding period of the four preceding years. Similarly accidents diminished from 152 in 1915, 176 in 1916, 197 in 1917 and 151 in 1918, to 112 for the corresponding three months of 1919. Suicides also diminished to a very marked degree. On the other hand, homicides showed no material decrease, a fact that has been noticed in other cities. It seems probable, however, that certain unusual factors are at work to increase the number of murders. As is usual after a great war, familiarity with science and readiness to resort to such means are circumstances that must be reckoned with during the slow return to law and order. The diminution in the deaths from alcoholism, accident and suicides that has occurred in Boston, has been observed in many other large American cities and the saving of life from these causes probably far exceeds the increased number of deaths from wood alcohol."

swindler! Trying to class you with fake promoters and mixing sharks! Yes—that's what he did! You! And look at him! Look at him! I want to tell you, Hilliard, it'll take more than his say-so to start anything around here! Don't you open your mouth, Rufus . . . you had your chance and you wouldn't take it! And I want to tell you right here and right now—"

"Wait a minute," Hilliard was dandy; the only quiet member of the quartette. "There's no use in telling all the neighbors just yet." He regarded Waring kindly. "Do you mind repeating precisely what you did say, Rufus? Don't you think I'm entitled to that much?"

The boy flushed agonizingly; he was the accuser, and yet he couldn't meet Hilliard's eyes. It wasn't guilt; it was mere intellectual inferiority; and yet it gave exactly the opposite impression.

"Well," he said desperately, "I know hearsay evidence is no good, so I got it first hand—in your own room in the Onondaga, didn't I? You won't deny that, will you? I didn't just pick up rumors—I got it from you. Didn't I go there and ask you questions, and didn't you give me the data? Show me figures and everything? And I told Mr. Cullen the very next day, it didn't look good to me." His voice rose stridently. "All right, I'll say to him, and I'll say it to you, and I'll say it to anybody that'll listen to me! It didn't look good to me then, and it doesn't now. I told him you acted darned funny about it. And just now I've been telling him I don't believe it's straight. You're too damned sketchy about it, and it's got all the earmarks of a bum promotion! There . . . Cullen!"

The omission of the prefix to the father of his idol was the worst insult he could conceive.

Cullen's hand was still on Hilliard's shoulder and it was Hilliard whom he addressed, explosively, and with that particular sort of muffled fury which rises best from a set of circumstances not thoroughly understood.

"What this is all about is beyond me! Only if this law minknow has gone as far as this . . . We've got to get at the bottom of it . . . You know that as well as I do, Hilliard, naturally. The boy's as wild as a hawk. Heaven knows how far he'd go outside. This has got to be cleared up! We've got to pound some sense into him. We—"

Hilliard was smiling vacuously; now that the blow had actually fallen, and the complaint officially lodged, he felt deliciously relaxed, content. Before he could contrive a reply Waring was strident again.

"Yes," the student's voice was thin with acidity. "Yes, you think you're pretty smart—all of you. Don't you? I come in here to do you a kindness that anybody else, it seems to me would take as a favor, and you and Angela jump all over me—why doesn't he deny it? That's what I want to know! Why doesn't he say something?"

Cullen looked at Hilliard and made a swift deduction, and spoke it. "He's waiting for the rest of it. Go on—you're only half through the yarn you told us."

"Oh, very well," Waring gathered courage. "You can have all you want—maybe more than you want. You'd have had it sooner if you hadn't started yelling at me. I know what I'm talking about; you people don't seem to realize I'm in the law! I don't go off half-cocked. I wrote to a law firm in Butte, Montana, that's what I did. I found out what was the biggest firm there, and I wrote 'em a letter. They answered it, too. I got my information right from the ground. I've got a letter that says—"

Cullen swayed forward, his hand outstretched, palm-upward, in a direct challenge of Waring's truthfulness.

"Where is it?"

The boy withdrew a step and stammered: "I left it home."

"Oh, you did?" Cullen's laugh was ringing. "That's likely!"

"Yes, that's exactly what I did! Think I'd bring an original letter out of my office—let it out of my hands until it's time to make it of record? Not on your life! I've got it all right. It says the Silverbow Mining corporation owns some acreage, fast enough, but there isn't a mine on it—"

Cullen vented his abridgment of rage on the empty air.

"Well, who in the devil ever said there was?"

"Why . . . didn't you?" The appeal was to Hilliard; and it was made in a tone of astonishment which would have been ludicrous if there hadn't been tragedy behind it.

"No!" Hilliard shook his head. "You can't accuse me of that, at least. . . . The only mine we ever mentioned was one in prospect. I always said it was a prospect, with an old shaft on it. It didn't? And so it is! But an old shaft isn't a producing mine, necessarily. And—please let him finish, Mr. Cullen!"

"Well . . . The boy had twin disks of hectic flame in his cheeks. 'That's only a detail, anyway . . . they said it was . . . undeveloped . . . they said the shaft had been abandoned more than two years ago, because it wasn't worth much of anything—'

Cullen's hands were closing and unclosing appreciatively.

"For Heaven's sake, who ever said it wasn't two years ago! We all know that! Give us some news, young man, give us some news!" Waring was breathing hard, and his interest had switched to Angela, who stood adamant. Indeed, he was suddently transferred to the status of a suppliant rather than that of a prosecuting witness.

"Well . . . they said it was offered . . . two years ago . . . to anybody who'd take it . . . for ten thousand dollars . . . and nobody'd take it as a gift . . ."

"Oh, good Lord!" Cullen was near to bursting. "Doesn't the fool know what a prospect is? Hasn't he seen the reports? And still he—"

"And . . . and the land next to it was . . . had a mine on it, the XLING mine, that's in pretty fair shape, but that didn't signify anything. . . . He paused for a moment. "And there hasn't been any work done on it, to speak of, for two years. . . . And the corporation report I got shows that a fellow named Martin Harmon's the president of it, and Harmon's a cheap Wall street man in New York. The Butte people don't consider him reliable. And I've written to him four times—and he won't answer."

"Ah!" said Hilliard, startled.

"Well?" Cullen repeated his challenge.

"That's all." He gazed beseechingly at Angela, who smiled and turned her head away.

"All?" Cullen breathed stertorously. "And with a flimsy lot of rot like that you've got the unmitigated gall to start a slanderous story like this about Henry Hilliard! You've got the nerve to—"

"The astonishing part of it," interposed Hilliard, with coolness which astonished even himself, "is that every-single item of it is true! Don't blame him, Mr. Cullen. It's true—every word."

"It's True—Every Word."

Cullen shook himself. "Of course it's true! Isn't it what you've told us yourself, in a different way? It's the telling of it that counts!"

"Now listen to me a moment," Hilliard was implacably serious; the way to the development was opening clear before him. He need only offer himself for judgment, and the future would take care of itself. "My purpose in coming up here this afternoon was to talk to you about this same property, Mr. Cullen. . . . I had some rather important things to tell you about it. But in view of this new attitude of Waring's, I'm going to act differently. This won't stop here, and I prefer to have somebody look into it before it's any worse. I'm going to put myself in your hands, Rufus and Angela. I want you both to witness this."

Mr. Cullen, I'm going to give you a check for eight thousand dollars; it's my whole balance at the Trust and Deposit company, less what I'll need to live on for a few days. I'm going to turn over to you twenty thousand shares in the Silverbow Mining corporation to keep for me—it's my own personal holding. I'm going to turn over to you my contract with the mining corporation, which calls for the delivery of all the rest of the corporate stock on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars, of which we've already paid sixty-two. I'll give you the corporation's receipt to me for that amount. And I give you my word of honor not to step four outside of the city of Silverbow, nor to be for one single hour out of your reach until you've investigated the whole proposition from beginning to end. I insist that you make that investigation. That's on condition that Rufus won't mention this again, either here or anywhere else, until he's collected the facts! And I'll tell you right now Rufus has given you the truth!"

Some Superstitions.

The breaking of a looking glass is, with some people, the occasion of a gloomy foreboding, and the unlucky person who does it is supposed to be doomed to seven years of bad luck. Pennock feathers were formerly considered as harbingers of sickness, yet fashion has introduced them into house decorations.

Literally Stumbled on Riches.

About a quarter of a century ago two prospectors in the husband of Western Australia had put up their tent for the night and determined to trek back to Perth next morning, as their horses had proved fruitless. One of them was aroused from sleep by the post-hoof of his horse, picked up a stone outside the tent and, going out to see what was the matter, he tripped in the darkness over a Boulder, which proved on examination to be an ancient pure gold. That was the beginning of Coolgardie.

Political Notes Of Interest To Women

WOMAN EXPLAINS WHY SHE STANDS BY REPUBLICANS

Writing in the Woman Citizen, Mrs. Frank W. Dodson, of Des Moines, Iowa, says:

"Yes, I can tell you in three hundred words why I chose the Republican party. I could use three thousand words and then not give all my reasons, but here are a few:

"With a very definite idea in mind as to what I could and would do with my vote I struggled years to help bring about the enfranchisement of the colored woman.

"This accomplished and the question of party arising, I find what? First, that I had to secure my enfranchisement not because of, but in spite of the Democratic party.

"I find that in the matter of Child Labor, the handmaiden of illiteracy, there are fifty times as many young children employed in industry in Democratic States as are employed in Republican ones.

"I find the percentage of illiteracy, according to the U. S. census of 1910, running from 29 per cent in Democratic Louisiana to 1.7 per cent in Republican Iowa, with statistics denying the statement that the high per cent of illiteracy in the South is brought about by the ignorant colored vote.

"I find that seven only of the Democratic States have a compulsory education law, and that in some of these the 'entire session' is so short and the exemptions so absurd as to make the law a mere pretense.

"I find that while a majority of the states have mothers' pensions and while millions of dollars pass each year into the hands of deserving mothers for the care of their children in their own homes, just six Democratic States have this law.

"I find that only three Democratic States in the nation grant to mothers equal guardianship with fathers over the children of them both, and that in two Democratic States a father can still will away his unborn child.

"I join the Republican party and lend what little strength I have to help it push still further forward the legislation in which I am interested and which I feel is of vital importance to the welfare of the nation."

WIFE NOT CHATTEL SAYS CONGRESSMAN FROM OLD BAY STATE

It is high time to get away from the old idea that the wife is the chattel of the husband, Representative Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts, told the House Immigration Committee, in urging enactment of a law under which American women, marrying aliens and remaining in this country, would retain their citizenship after adoption of the suffrage amendment.

Mr. Rogers declared his measure did not protect wealthy "American title hunters," adding that he was not interested in extending the right of citizenship "to women who think so little of it that they go abroad to live."

In pointing out that his measure would not give the right of citizenship to an alien woman marrying an American, Mr. Rogers said this was done so that to be naturalized "a woman would have to go through the same machinery with the man."

Mrs. Maude Wood Park, president of the National League of Women Voters, endorsed the Rogers bill.

WOMAN'S CLUB CARRYING ON WORK OF TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

The committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis has been acting in conjunction with the local dispensary staff of the state department of health and supplemented their activities wherever possible. The program laid down by the larger organization has been adhered to as closely as local conditions have permitted up to this time. Realizing the suffering entailed to both patient and family in having to take advanced cases of tuberculosis to some far off sanatorium, the object now being striven for is to have the county authorities provide pavilions for the case of such cases where they are at all times within easy access for their family or friends.

The state sanatoriums are being given over to patients in the earlier stages of the disease. Elementary schools and schools for vocational training have been established at these institutions in which the patient may work while he waits for a cure instead of wait while he coughs. Besides the general education they are trained in trades suited to their strength such as chair caning, gardening etc. A trip to Cresson or any one of the state sanatoria is a lesson in the modern methods of caring for tuberculosis sufferers.

The local committee for Prevention of Tuberculosis of the Woman's Club of Clearfield is directing its efforts along the following lines, viz:

(a) A health education for every child by means of the "Modern Health Crusade" movement which they hope to introduce into every school.

(b) Concentrated effort to bring pressure to bear upon the powers that be in order to prevail upon them to erect a pavilion for the care of our own advanced cases of tuberculosis. Make public demand so intense that they can no longer postpone action in the matter.

(c) Establishment of supply closets at the local clinic rooms where those without means may be provided with necessary supplies such as bedding, mattresses, pillows, cots, oil-stoves, roller and cue chairs, sleeping porches, clothing, etc. After being properly fumigated certain of these articles can be loaned to patient after patient for their use and comfort.

(d) Visiting cases brought to their attention, investigating same and under proper circumstances directing relief thru an emergency.

(e) Educational work wherever possible.

STATE WILL BE ASKED TO REBUILD BRIDGES TAKEN BY ICE FLOOD

WILL PROCEED UNDER ACT WHICH PUTS RESPONSIBILITY FOR REPLACING FLOOD- DESTROYED BRIDGES UPON STATE

COMMISSIONERS TAKE FIRST STEP

The County Commissioners of Clearfield have already begun the preliminary work incident to the replacing of the Deer Creek and Rollingstone bridges across the Susquehanna which were destroyed by the ice flood on Saturday morning last.

It is expected that both bridges will be constructed at the expense of the state under the provisions of an amended Act of Assembly dated April 21, 1903. This act provides among other things as follows: "From and after the passage of this Act the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall from time to time rebuild all bridges maintained, owned and controlled by the several counties and known as county bridges which are now or may hereafter be erected over and across the navigable rivers and such other streams as have been declared public highways by Act of Assembly, which may hereafter be carried away or destroyed by flood or windstorm, and rebuild the same in case the same are again carried away or destroyed from like cause."

This law also provides that following the destruction of a bridge by flood, such as occurred Saturday, the County Commissioners may petition the court of Dauphin County to appoint viewers to view the situation and report back to the court on the same. The petition must set out the location of the bridge and the necessity therefor together with an estimate of the cost of the erection of such new bridge.

The Dauphin county court shall thereupon appoint five viewers, one of whom shall be an engineer and not more than two of whom shall be residents of the county wherein the bridge is to be located. After making their view, the viewers will report their finding to the court, which shall be passed upon by the court and from which finding either the county or state may appeal within thirty days. When satisfactory to both parties the court shall then direct the state to proceed at once and let contracts for the rebuilding of the said bridge, all expense of same to be borne by the state.

County Engineer G. A. Flink, of Harrisburg, arrived in Clearfield yesterday and accompanied by the County Commissioners went down to Deer Creek and Rollingstone this morning for the purpose of making the necessary estimate of the cost of constructing the two bridges.

County Solicitor A. H. Woodward has already prepared the petition and when the estimate of cost is supplied the petition will be presented in the Dauphin county court with a request to expedite the proceedings as rapidly as possible.

This will be good news to Clearfield county taxpayers and should and no doubt will result in the prompt rebuilding of these necessary bridges.

The Humphrey bridge across the river between Curwensville and Lumber City was built in 1889 by the state at the request of the county under the original law quoted above.

WHERE TO PAY YOUR INCOME TAX

Yesterday The Progress carried a notice that the income tax collector would be in Clearfield on Friday, Saturday and Monday to assist taxables to make out their returns and receive taxes and that he would sit in the council rooms of the Borough building.

We are advised this morning that the income tax man will be here as advertised but that he will occupy the office of the Clearfield Trust Company where he will be pleased to meet anybody who desires assistance in the making of returns.

The making of your income tax return is a very important matter which if neglected will lay you open to a heavy fine. Give that matter your attention today. Remember that you must make a return if your earnings during the last year have been: $1000 for single men or women or $2000 for married men or women. You may have earned a great deal more than this and not have to pay a tax by reason of deductions but you must make the return.

Don't forget the time and the place: Friday, Saturday and Monday at the Clearfield Trust Company.

WILL WILSON BE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

Democratic Dopesters Do Not
Know What To Say Until Pres-
ident States His Position

McADOO MAKES STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, March 10—Whether Woodrow Wilson is an active candidate for a third term; a passive candidate, or intends to withdraw entirely from the race was today an extremely acute question in political circles, but one that gave evidence of being answered within the next few days.

The political situation, so far as the Democrats are concerned, was considerably clarified this afternoon when William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and perhaps the foremost Democratic candidate, committed himself publicly for the first time on the treaty in an exclusive statement to Universal Service. Mr. McAdoo said:

"I have always been for the ratification of the treaty without reservations so that we might enter the league of nations on a basis of equality with everyone else; but if there are to be reservations I believe they should be merely interpretative so that the text will not be changed."

It will thus be seen that Mr. McAdoo views the treaty in exactly the same mind as does the President and if the latter feels that his health is such to prevent him from engaging in a campaign for a third nomination, Mr. McAdoo might easily be his standard bearer. But until the President makes some definite announcement on the subject of a third term, the capital will have to bear the embarrassment of his silence.

Persons who advocate the nomination of A. Mitchell Palmer, the only administration leader who has an active campaign committee, declare the President "is out of the race."

The supporters of Mr. McAdoo, who has no organization that is functioning openly, take the position that under certain circumstances the President might be forced to run, and the lieutenants of Wm. Jennings Bryan and many other possible candidates who are waiting to determine their course of action say the President is a candidate and moreover they insist that his candidacy will mean party suicide.

Out of the McAdoo, Palmer, Bryan clan, there will come, possibly within the next week, action that will have a decided effect on the Democratic campaign. Mr. Bryan will be in Washington next week and he will spend his 60th birthday, which occurs March 19, in this city. Unless the President is heard from by then, the Commoner and his followers will declare war on a third term. Their petition will be that the President is through, that he failed to win his treaty fight, and that it is up to him to assist in securing harmony in the party ranks by eliminating himself rather than to bring chaos by putting himself forward.

From a source well within the circle of those who smile on the attorney general it was learned today that Mr. Palmer believes he has forced a declaration from the men who advise and consult with the President; that upon the expiration of the treaty fight, one way or another he will declare he no longer has political ambition. At a dozen meetings held here recently by Democratic leaders—and one of the sessions was for the purpose of presenting the treasury of the Democratic national committee—the question of the President's plans has been discussed. The party leaders have been almost unanimous in their declaration that the President could not overcome the third term bugaboo and many of them have not hesitated to say that it "would be most unfortunate."

WOMEN'S CLUB HOST TO DISTINGUISHED VISITORS TUESDAY

The Woman's Club banquet held at the DuMeling Hotel on Tuesday evening was a brilliant and successful affair, both from a standpoint of numbers and the fine speeches made by the speakers of the evening. Seventy-one covers were laid. The table decorations of yellow jonquils and daffodils presented a most attractive and unimpaired appearance as the women found their places at the tables.

Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown, President of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women and Mrs. Joseph H. Boviard, of Bradford, were the guests of honor.

Mrs. James P. O'Laughlin performed the duties of toastmistress in a most gracious and charming manner. Mrs. Philip Reed, Vice President of the Woman's Club, in the absence of Mrs. Harry Boulton, President, welcomed the guests and club members in a few vivacious and cordial words of greeting. Miss Dibert's response on "Citizenship" was a heart to heart talk on the duties as well as the privileges which will be ours as soon as we obtain the vote, and the need of education in fundamentals and on the issues of the day, so that we may use our new power to the welfare of our community and of our nation. Miss Dibert also urged that every club should have its own club house where the members would bring their work their problems and tie up all of the women's activities under one head; a meeting place and a place of recreation and study for the young people of the town.

Mrs. E. C. Reeve told of the Junior Extension Work which is being carried on for and by the young people in many clubs as a section or department of the older club.

Mrs. Joseph H. Boviard's response to the toast "Community Activities for Club Workers" touched on war memorials and rather deplored the fact that we seem to be forgetting so soon the lessons we learned during the war. With our boys "over there" our lives took on a new aspect. Material things no longer mattered and we carried on with those boys with heart, soul and hands. Are we going to stop now? All those boys fought for a common cause. We should work for this common cause that it may be preserved. The question is not, shall we do it, but, when shall we begin? How shall we know that we remember what they did for us? We want to show our appreciation and we want the thing to be so fine and splendid that no fault can be found with it. It shall be for all of the public. A community house would be a splendid thing, or a public library. But Mrs. Boviard emphasized particularly that now is the time to act, because as we get further and further away from the war we are apt to become more forgetful and unappreciative of the sacrifices made for us.

Mrs. Charles Kurtz gave a distinct and carefully prepared report of the Northwestern District Conference at Ridgway, February 26 and 27, outlining for the home club the fine enthusiasm and splendid work done in this past year along many lines by the women of the ten neighboring counties.

A general discussion of possibilities for club work in Clearfield was participated in by several members. Stress was laid upon increased membership which will make it possible for the club to do bigger things. After singing the Pennsylvania Federation's song:

"Hail, Pennsylvania, Loyal and True,
Thy Daughters concentrate their lives anew;
Birthplace of Liberty, May Truth keep us free,
Dear Pennsylvania, we sing of Thee."
The women adjourned with a feeling that they had spent a most pleasant and profitable evening.

WRIGHT McENALLY DEAD

Wright McEnally, son of the late Joseph B. and Amelia McEnally, passed away at the Clearfield Hospital at 11:30 o'clock last night, after an illness extending over a period of several months. The deceased was born in Clearfield August 5, 1861. He never married and was the last surviving member of his immediate family.

The funeral will be held from the home of his aunt, Mrs. E. A. Bigler, on Second street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Hillcrest cemetery.

GIFFORD PINCHOT HEADS FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

Prominent Pennsylvanian With National Reputation Is Called
By Governor Sprout

NEW ERA IN CONSERVATION

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 10—Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester of the United States, was today appointed commissioner of forestry of Pennsylvania, to succeed Robert S. Conklin, who resigned. Mr. Conklin was appointed a member of the state water supply commission.

The Pennsylvania forest reserve comprises more than a million and a quarter acres and it is Governor Sprout's plan to greatly expand them during the remainder of his administration. Mr. Pinchot assumes his new duties at once.

In commenting upon Mr. Pinchot's appointment, Governor Sprout said: "I have commended Mr. Pinchot's services. We have in him a citizen of the state who is the foremost figure in forestry in the United States and I thought that we should have the benefit of his service here at home. Mr. Pinchot has been used to handling national problems, but Pennsylvania is an empire in itself. When one considers that this state contains more people than all of the eleven states combined lying west of the western line of the Dakotas, extended clear through to the Gulf of Mexico, and in which most of the United States forestry work has been done, the magnitude of the opportunity for public benefit in a constructive forestry program in the Keystone state will be realized.

Pennsylvania and the six states bordering upon it contain about 30 per cent. of the entire population of the union, and our state forests which will soon be accessible by good roads, will be a benefit to all of these people. Our forestry work is one of the inspiring problems before us and Mr. Pinchot's enthusiasm for this work and his devotion to it are recognized everywhere. I am glad that we have been able to call him into the service of Pennsylvania and we will all stand by him in his progressive plans for the protection and development of our forest area. There is no politics in his appointment. He and I sometimes do not agree in our politics and may not in the future but we do agree in our desire to serve the state and in our belief that good public service is the best political asset.

"There is no reflection upon Mr. Conklin in the change. I have stated to him that no criticism which has ever reached me of his department has reflected in any way upon his official integrity, or his personal honor. I have transferred him to the water supply commission, a place with which he is entirely familiar and which will be very agreeable to him, he being particularly well-qualified for this work by long experience.

The Red-Hot Purpose.

That which dominates the life, which is ever uppermost in the mind, generally comes somewhere near realization; but there is a great difference between a lukewarm desire and a red-hot purpose. It takes steam to drive the piston in the engine; warm water will never turn the wheels. The longings that fall of realization are usually just below the boiling point.—Orison Swett Marden.

Effective Holder for Penn.

A good-looking old-fashioned desk with rose-colored appointments was lacking a holder for pens, pencils, etc. An ingenious person substituted a rose pottery flower holder which came with a flower bowl. With a goodly assortment of pens, including a good looking quill, this holder was very effective. A blue flower holder can be used in a room where blue predominates.

Elms

No natural Gothic arch compares with that formed by two American elms, where their lofty jets of foliage shoot across each other's ascending curves, to intermingle their showery flakes of green. When one looks through a long double row of these, he beholds a temple not built with hands, fairer than any minster, with all its clustered stems and fluttering capitals, that ever grew in stone.—Holmes.

WETS PREPARING TO ELECT WET CONGRESSMEN IN ALL DISTRICTS

WASHINGTON, March 11—A vigorous campaign to wrest Congress from the control of the prohibitionists and replace it with men favoring light wine and beer is being planned by the "wets" throughout the country it was learned today. The Supreme Court's decision on the 18th Amendment and the Volstead law which is expected to be handed down within a few weeks will determine how extensive the campaign will be. Should the Court hold that Congress has the right to define what is intoxicating as it did in the Volstead law by fixing the amount of alcohol the campaign of the "wets" then is expected to be started to replace the ultra-prohibitionists in Congress with men favoring light wine and beer. If this is successful the Volstead law could be easily amended so that 3 1-2 per cent. beer could be legalized.

C. C. A. A. WILL HOLD ELECTION OF PERMANENT OFFICERS TONIGHT

If you are a man, a red blooded man with a desire to see all kinds of sports and athletic games and exhibitions sponsored and protected by level and honest management, you will have an opportunity this evening at seven thirty to lend your aid to such an aim.

The first regular meeting of the Clearfield County Athletic Association will be held tonight at that hour at the town hall. At this meeting the association will elect its officers for the ensuing year. The principal point of interest is the preliminary and an effort is being made to elect a prominent Clearfield citizen who is capable of running the association in a efficient, business-like manner.

New membership applications are being received every day and a fine turnout is expected at the election this evening.

Be there and become a member before the election is called. Remember that seven thirty is the time and the court room the place.

HOOVER EXPECTED TO CORROBORATE SIMS CHARGES AGAINST DANIELS

WASHINGTON, March 10—Herbert Hoover, federal food administrator, will be asked to testify in behalf of Roger Daniels Sims before the Senate Naval Affairs committee investigating the Daniels-Sims controversy. Sims today requested the committee to call Hoover and Chairman Hale stated he would do so. It is probable that Hoovers consent was obtained before Sims made the request. Sims wants Hoover to corroborate his charges regarding the deplorable situation of the Allies when war entered the war. He said Hoover gave him "his impression of the possible defeat of the Allies" during a conference in London shortly after he arrived. Sims today made a disclosure that in July 1917 he urged Secretary Daniels to send more American ships to British waters. Daniels, the records showed, would not entertain such an idea.

ALLIED MILITARY OCCUPATION OF TURKEY IS BEING CONSIDERED

LONDON, March 10—Extensive military occupation of Turkey with more drastic measures if necessary was believed a certainty in peace conference circles here today. Premier Venizelos, it was understood, has offered to put the Greek troops at the disposal of the Allies if they are needed. Venizelos it was said made his offer to the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers Wednesday. It probably will be accepted. General Malet, the British commander would have charge of these troops. Allied leaders denied reports of extensive and bloody clashes between Allied and Turkish troops in Constantinople but it was admitted that the Allied troops carried out impressive military demonstrations.

PITTSBURGH DISTRICT COAL PRODUCTION SMALL

PITTSBURGH, March 10—Coal production in the Pittsburgh district in February was only 57 per cent. of the total capacity of the mines, figures given out by the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association showed. A total of 1,883,000 tons of coal was mined or approximately 75,000 tons less than in January. These figures are from 145 mines representing about 90 per cent. of the mines in this district. The coal car shortage which has been improvement is more acute now than at any time during the past six months, R. W. Gardner, head of the association said today.

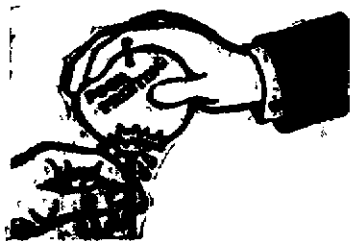

TREATY STILL SHOWS SIGNS OF LIFE

WASHINGTON, March 11—Unless the Republican Senators spurn the overtures being made by the Democrats the treaty will have a chance to vote on the Watson-Simmons compromise reservation to Article Ten it was apparent today. Renewal of negotiations is considered likely to prolong the present peace treaty situation. Simmons said today that the proposed compromise will be offered unless Republicans "form" a closed corporation against any modification which Senator Lodge himself has not sponsored.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A few years before the death of A. H. Irwin, he, in connection with several other gentlemen, made a proposition to the people of this town, that, had it been carried out, would have proven a great benefit to the young people as well as to the town itself. His suggestion was that the citizens of the town go together and get a long lease on the Pee-Wee's nest grounds from the owner, Mr. H. M. Irwin, which could have been secured at that time. The grounds and grove, which include many acres, were to be thoroughly cleaned up by removing the dead stuff and brush; a dam, four feet in height, was to have been built across the river, backing water enough for boating and bathing purposes; some half dozen small bath booths to be built conveniently near the river bank and some boats placed in the water; a house built for the residence of the caretaker; two bridges thrown across the gully at the springs which would connect the grounds proper with a large cleared field that could be converted into a ball park tennis grounds; a driveway of a mile or more in length made. Some few other improvements were to be added from time to time as their need was felt. It was figured that all of these things could be accomplished for the sum of $5,000. It is only about a ten-minute walk from the center of the town to these grounds, and with a dancing pavilion, bathing, tennis, base ball, etc., the young people would not lack for somewhere to go in the afternoons and evenings for enjoyments suitable to their tastes. On the other hand, by charging a nominal sum for use of boats, bath booths and permits for camping parties, the expense of keeping up the grounds, buildings, etc., would have assisted greatly in meeting the nominal expenses. As one of our large business men said to the writer the other day, "The town made a great mistake when it did not go ahead and follow out Mr. Irwin's suggestion." Many camping parties come to Curwensville every summer and spend weeks, and some of them the summer months camping along the river on or near the above mentioned grounds. Mr. Irwin's plan was a good one and not a costly one either, and had it been carried out, would have been an inducement to bring many summer visitors to this place. Out of door exercise is what the young folks want and what they need for healthfulness, and very few if any want to be housed up during the summer afternoons or evenings. It would be well enough to again talk this matter as we are marching along toward an industrial boom, and instead of putting $25,000 or $30,000 into a Community House, which the town is not ripe for yet, financially, carry out Mr. Irwin's plan at a cost of not more than $6,000, and we venture the assertion that the citizens will be surprised what good and efficient results will follow in a short time.

Mrs. George Dressler, Mrs. Reuben Jordan and S. B. Welty of Rockton, were Tuesday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Post.

Mrs. Leslie Spencer who has been absent from town for some few days has returned.

One would naturally infer, who has given the subject any thought at all.

The jitney conveying the High school pupils to and from Clearfield and Woodland is experiencing considerable trouble owing to the icy condition of the roads. They have had several thrills but no accidents so far.

Last Sunday being the last missionary Sunday of the conference year for the M. E. Sunday school an effort was made to meet the Centenary pledge of the Sunday school which was $150. We understand the amount was reached.

A joke is being told around town on our rural mail carrier who while on his route one day last week saw in the woods along the road what he thought was a young porker struggling in the snow. Now Charlie has visions of getting married and saw here a chance to lay in a supply of pork for the future time and after making a place in his sleigh to stow away the pig he took a rope and making a noose in it slipped up quietly behind the pig ready to pounce upon it, when behold it was a dead pig and poor Charlie was stung.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid in meat which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION IN WOODLAND

It is about time something was done to better the conditions of the school buildings or cease to use them as such. The writer has in mind the two story school building in upper Woodland which is being or rather is supposed to be heated by a furnace in the lower room. Now this being a severe winter, the furnace seems inadequate for the two rooms and the children have been sent home several times because it was too cold for them and on a day like Monday of this week they were kept there in a temperature of 50 degrees.

The building is not only an ice house but a fire trap also. The furnace is placed in the corner of the building just inside the door of the first floor and with only the partition wall between it and the stairway to the upper floor. In case of fire escape from the upper room would be cut off entirely.

As is the case with those pipeless heaters when they must be fired so hard the wood work surrounding them becomes dried and charred. The teachers realizing the danger instituted a fire drill and a few days ago the children were all gotten out of the building in one minute.

The grounds surrounding the building are deplorable and in such weather as we are getting now it is almost impossible for the children to get to school and back home without wet feet.

Surely the children of a town as large and important as Woodland are deserving of better schools. If the citizens and taxpayers of our town would realize the large amount of money being paid out each year for tuition for High School pupils and the still larger amount paid out for transportation by the parents of these pupils and realize how far this amount would go to support a High School in our town, where the children would be all in one building in a suitable place that could be properly heated and comfortable. There is probably many children who are denied the privilege of High School because their parents are unable to supply the means for their transportation who would then receive the High School training at home.

It is high time people were doing something about this. We hope this will cause them to think about it and "Thinking does no good unless it leads to right action."

PIONEER GOSHEN FARMER DIES

Thomas Lingle, a pioneer Goshen township farmer died at his home near Shawville Tuesday afternoon, March 10, 1920, at 2 o'clock aged almost 87 years.

The deceased was one of the best known and most highly respected residents of that section. He served throughout the Civil war and had an enviable war record. He was honest and upright in his dealings with his fellow men and always took more than ordinary interest in public men and affairs. Mr. Lingle was a noted hunter and was to be found following the chase every season, hunting through the last deer season.

He is survived by six daughters and two sons, as follows: Mrs. Valentine Rowles, of Woodland; Mrs. Ed. Jury, Mrs. Bert Clark and Mrs. A. C. Shaw, of Clearfield; Mrs. Alex. Hainsey, of Shawville; Mrs. James Dixon, of Wallacetown; George and Warren, of Shawville. His wife preceded him to that better world three years ago.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Shawville M. E. church. Interment in Shawville cemetery.

ROADS IN AWFUL SHAPE

The county roads which were so badly drifted during the winter, are well-nigh impassable now that the snow and ice has begun to melt, and the mud is in and about Clearfield the hard out to it to keep their customers supplied.

BELL MANAGER
EXPLAINS REASON FOR INCREASE

A reporter for The Progress called on Local Manager H. M. Peek this morning, with the thought that he might be able to give some pertinent information which would be of interest to the Bell Telephone subscribers in connection with the advertising now being done by the Bell Company.

Mr. Peek said: "The advertisements, which we are running tell their own story. A little of the history leading up to the present situation might prove of interest."

You will recall that in 1917 the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania reviewed our rates and approved the schedules. They based their studies on material and wage prices of 1911, 1912 and 1913. Then the war came on and the Government took over all telephone and telegraph properties. The increases in wages and material costs threatened the Government with a deficit. So Uncle Sam found it necessary to increase charges for both tolls and exchange service.

"On December 1st, as the properties had been turned back to the private owners, the Public Service Commission ordered us to return to the 1917 rates. You understand that when the Commission approves a rate schedule, that schedule is to remain in force for three years, and the three years period does not expire until April of this year.

"So you see we are now operating on rates based on 1911, 1912 and 1913 living conditions, and as a result we are not making ends meet. If the people are interested in good telephone service, a growing and improving system, they will take an interest in our situation. We can't go on at a loss; no business can. Only by an increase in the rates to meet 1920 costs of operation can the service be continued.

"Some people say that our service is not as good as it should be. Now we realize that there is room for improvement, but we are bound up in our ability to pay wages and buy materials by an income based on before-the-war rates. The employment problem is serious. Our exacting business requires a high grade of labor both for operating and maintenance.

"It is a serious problem we are facing. And that means that the telephone-using public of the state must face the problem. The service is theirs."

Mu-Col Quickly
Defeats Deadly
Catarrh Germs

Proves Mu-col Makes Miserable, Despondent Catarrh Sufferers Well Again in Short Time at Trifling Cost

For Twenty Years Was Advertised Exclusively to the Medical Profession

Here is the only sure way to get rid of Catarrh with all its obnoxious symptoms.

Go to your druggist today and ask for a small package of MU-COL. Dissolve half a teaspoonful in a teaspoonful of warm water and stir till dissolved. Then, by snuffing up from the palm of the hand or by using nasal douche or atomizer, allow the MU-COL solution to come into contact with the infected membranes.

Almost instantly you will feel the effect as its penetrating antiseptic properties are carried into every nook and crevice of the mucous membrane where the germs thrive and multiply, loosening up the congestion and accumulated secretions, which if not attended to now, will eventually threaten the existence of the membranes themselves.

For twenty years MU-COL was advertised exclusively for the medical profession. How well it has succeeded even in the most severe cases of infected Catarrh conditions of the nose and throat is evidenced by the unsolicited praise bestowed upon this truly wonderful discovery by the medical profession.

Only after being pronounced a complete success is it offered to the general public, and today any first class drug store can supply you.

Governor Sproul's appointment of Gifford Pinchot to head the State Department of Forestry will be hailed with approval by every Pennsylvanian. Mr. Pinchot is the logical man for the place. He has made forestry and conservation a life study and his experience as a federal official in this same line of work fits him for the position. The governor has, by this appointment, shown himself to be above the petty jealousies of politics. Pinchot has been a radical dissenter from what is generally termed regular Republicanism in that he has often seen fit to oppose his party leaders. Forestry and conservation will enter a new era under Pinchot and it is gratifying to see the governor draw into his official family one more of the most capable men of the commonwealth.

A Woodland citizen contributes an article today on the schools of that town. The Editor heartily seconds the sentiments expressed by this Woodland citizen who has taken the lead in a campaign for better school conditions for Bradford township. While we believe a township high school would be ideal for Bradford township and we recognize that many young men and women of that township are terribly handicapped because of their inability to stand transportation expenses to the Clearfield High school it must not be forgotten that a township high school will entail much higher school expenses and not provide for one of the major requirements of the township, viz: decent buildings and surroundings for the younger school children. The children of Woodland deserve better treatment at the hands of Bradford township citizens than they are getting. The fault is not with the school board. It is up to the citizens to demand that those old antiquated buildings be torn down and modern, healthful buildings be erected.

FEW TOOLS NEEDED FOR THE HOME GARDEN

Thrift gardens should be thrift gardens from start to finish, and the vegetables grown in them should not cost as much as it would cost to buy them on the market. Every item of expense should be kept down. This is especially true in the purchase of tools according to United States Department of Agriculture specialists. Some gardeners have an idea that they must have a large assortment of hoes rakes wheel hose, seed drills, spraying outfits and special equipment before they can begin a garden. But the tools actually required in the cultivation of a thrift garden are few and simple. A spade or spading fork, a steel rake and a hoe, together with a piece of string and two small wooden stakes, are the chief essentials. There are a number of other tools, such as a trowel, sprinkling can, wheel hoe, seed drill and wheelbarrow that may often be used to advantage, but they are not absolutely necessary.

It is important, however, that the few essential tools be properly cared for and used frequently. Every time they are used they should be cleaned and stored in a dry place. Also, they should be kept sharp so that the work may be done easily and thoroughly. A good job of hoeing can not be done with a dull or rusty hoe.

If the garden is located at a distance from the house, a small, low, flat tool box, long enough to accommodate the hoe and rake, should be provided. The top of this box may be covered with a piece of roofing paper to make it waterproof, and a small lock should be provided for safety. The loss of one good tool will more than offset the cost of a toolbox of this character.

A most interesting question was propounded to us today. Namely: How many veterans of the Civil War are there living in Clearfield county? We cannot answer. It has been variously estimated at from one hundred to one hundred and fifty. We hope to be able to print a list of those in this community within the next day or two and then we will ask our readers to supply us with the names of those whom we have missed. When the list is published it will be added to until all these valiant men are listed.

Women And The HOME ACCOUNT

Because women usually conduct the home finances, and because the beginning of thrift is in the home, it is well for them to link their plans with a good bank.

A bank account for the home relieves the housewife of having correct change, sending and risking cash, disputes over accounts, etc. Pay by check—it's the better way.

Come here. We think our bank is a good bank for women and the home account.

CHAPTER XII.

As he crossed the threshold of the long, overdecorated drawing-room, he knew intuitively that he had entered upon a climax. This he sensed from the attitude of the three who turned toward him as he entered—sensed it before he saw what was in their eyes. The atmosphere was vibrant, as though from sound waves which had passed beyond, and yet left traces of the swell behind them. The room was silent; but of a silence more confounding than a deafening turmoil.

Hilliard, standing on the threshold, was himself the center of this atmosphere; he felt it partly because his mood was so flexible and partly because the three who faced him had simultaneously thrown their fixed attention on him, thrown it directly and challengingly, including him in the finale of the climax, while they stood motionless as statues. He looked at Waring, whose expression was defensively acute; he looked at Angela, flushed, plump, and excited; he looked at Mr. Cullen, tight-lipped and frowning; and Hilliard caught his breath as a swimmer who launches himself to a high dive, and walked composedly into the drawing-room.

"I hope," he said gravely, "I'm not intruding. Am I?"
The trio was galvanized into action: Cullen fairly leaped at him, "Hilliard!" he said, "thank the Lord! You're the very man we want!"
Hilliard smiled straight into Cullen's eyes.

"That's why I'm here," he said.
Waring laughed loudly—too loudly; and the laugh stopped short, for Cullen was towering over him—Cullen blazing with indignant wrath, and with a hand resting on Hilliard's shoulder.
"Now go on," said Cullen commandingly. "We don't want any under-handed work around here, Rufus. I've told you that once already. Go on! say it to his face! You're conversational enough behind his back—say it to his face! Either you tell him or I will!"
The boy wiped his forehead. Bends of sweat stood out on it.
"Mr. Cullen . . . it isn't . . . it isn't fair . . ."

NEW MUSKRAT LAW BRINGS LOSS TO YOUNG TRAPPERS

HARRISBURG, March 8.—Charging that a loss of hundreds of dollars through the sale of muskrat pelts will result during March, trappers of the state are severely criticizing the state law closing the season for trapping that animal March 1. At the present time, the trappers assert, the market is bringing a price higher than it ever before reached and thru the law the muskrat is protected and the trapper the loser. Fur markets are offering as high as $5 to $6 for the muskrat pelts this year.

In other states the complaining trappers say, the closed season is not reached until April 1 or April 15, which allows a month or six weeks before the weather is too warm for trapping this animal. Under the present law they are given ordinarily but two or three weeks to trap before the streams freeze over and prevent further operations until the spring breakup occurs, it is complained.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opi-

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

Look one's best and feel one's best, before putting food into the stomach. Girls and women with sallow skins, dry, flakey, and pimply complexions, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexions, before it is absorbed into the blood, just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of poisonous material in the form of smoke. So the food and drink taken each morning should begin this phosphoric hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just food through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body. If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste matter and toxins from the stomach. Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just live. Kidneys and bowels, thus clearing, sweetening and purifying the entire system, try this for a week and notice results.

"THE HELLION"

With Margariet Fisher
"THE HELLION" is an emotional tornado—a dramatic whirlwind! One of the biggest pictures of the year! The story is grippingly unusual. A beautiful young girl suffers so from the shock of her sweetheart's death in the war that she is placed in an asylum by her parents. Then the designing pair, seeking to obtain the girl's fortune left her by her aunt, substitute a cabaret singer for their own child. The soldier lover returns, alive and learns the truth, then—what happens?

SPRING STYLES ARE HARD ON BUXOM MAID AND MATRON

The Spring styles all for slim folks are

And so to get more thin, The fatties, dieting and stunts, Do desperately begin.

NEW YORK, March 11.—It's really no use if you are one of those three-hundred-on-the-hoof figures to hope to carry off with any degree of chic one of those girlish little Eton jacket suits. As for the happy, hippy flounced and pannered taffeta frock model or the pleated skirt and separate slip on blouse effect the sedately who persuades one on your plump personality should be shot at sunrise.

Yet the fat female MUST wear something and when she is panting to be smart as well as panting with embonpoint, it is a cruel fate that fashion should design exclusively for willow wand figures this Spring. There is simply only one way Fatima may hope to scale the heights sartorially and that is to tip the scales less ponderously.

She has tried "Eat and grow Thin" electric treatments, rubber garments and Swedish massage, Turkish baths, violet rays and nauseating Java herb rostrums. And now she is a devout and portly devotee at the shrine of a reduction specialist who reduces speedily, painlessly and without the aid of a net, a diet or calisthenics. No wonder the waiting room of this modern miracle man is filled to overflowing with overflowing females. Buxom beauties bustle up his doorsteps in puffing throngs and pass down again less ponderously as well; by week they shed their little two to three pounds per. By taking a magic little capsule three times daily their fat melts off merrily despite unrestricted orgies amongst the fleshpots and the pastries, the lambons and the mayonnaises. The strength of this magic little capsule is increased weekly by the simple expedient of the doctor telephoning the prescription to a nearby pharmacy.

There's never a scrap of paper, a written word, to spoil the delicious and intriguing mystery of the dose. That's probably the reason that the plump patients don't understand why with every five pounds loss they gain a year of age, why with every ounce off there's a wrinkle on. For the favorite motto of the reducing doctor is "A little thyroid makes the whole world thin," only he goes it one better and adds "and a lot of thyroid makes 'em thin quick." So the answer to this get-thin-quick method is spelled thyroid with a capital T and when the patients have reduced sufficiently to fit the Spring styles they are also reduced to a fit state for a sanitarium.

Alas, it is a hopeless and sad verity that there is no easy short cut to slender lines. Only by a Spartan foregoing of all gastronomic delights and a dogged persistence at exercise may you jettison off a superfluous pound or two.

GOMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoid-

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

PORTRAYS HER HEROINE'S LIFE

Mary Miles Minter, who is being starred in "Anne of Green Gables" herself for years an admirer of the L. M. Montgomery "Anne" stories, portrays Annie Shirley just as the author described her.

Anne Shirley, an orphan, is sent to "Green Gables" the home of Marilla and Matthew Cuthbert, a New England spinster and her farmer brother in response to a request from them that a boy be sent. They accept Anne who proves a mischievous girl whose pranks stir the villagers. She grows up and is graduated from the Academy with honors. Matthew's plan to send her to college is thwarted when he has financial reverses resulting in his death. Anne obtains a position to teach, and with her meager earnings engages a specialist to operate on Marilla's eyes. Throughout the picture Anne has difficulties with a family named Pie. Her final triumph over them and the prospect of her marriage with a boyhood sweetheart close the picture.

Will be shown at Liberty theatre Friday afternoon at a matinee two showings 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. also one showing at night previous to wrestling match.

STATE ANNOUNCES MONEY AWARDS TO RURAL TOWNSHIPS

HARRISBURG, March 10.—The State Highway Department has announced the proportion in which $1,000,000 appropriated by the 1919 legislature for payment of state rewards to township supervisors is to be apportioned. The old system of bonuses to townships has been abolished and in its place comes the method of distributing rewards for work actually accomplished by townships in road improvement.

The appropriation of $1,000,000 has been apportioned among the various counties according to the miles of roads in townships of the second class. This mileage is compiled from map surveys made by the township division of the State Highway Department. There are a total of 74,875 miles of township roads in townships of the second class. The distribution is at the rate of $13.35 per mile. Second class townships are not entitled to any part of this reward until they comply with the state law governing the new system.

The mileage of township roads together with the amount apportioned to Clearfield county is 1539 miles amounting to $21,889.81.

ing a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

"Fair!" Angela's soprano had risen to a half-scream. "Rufe Waring, after what you've been saying, you talk about being fair! Why if you—"

to Waring. "We're going to get at the bottom of this sooner or later—and the sooner the better. I'm waiting for you to repeat what you just told us, Rufus."

There were tears of anger in the low student's eyes—of anger and of impotence. He gave Angela a look of superb disdain, shrugged his shoulders. "Well, that settles that," he said, and as Angela gave a gasp of understanding, and turned angrily white, he laughed metallically.

Cullen moved nearer to him.

"Are you going to speak up or not? Because if you aren't..."

Waring folded his arms; but he still failed of the pose he planned, because his eyes and his muscles were traitor to him.

"No, I'm not! Not until I'm ready to! I'm not afraid of the whole crowd of you! I'm not going to be bullied and bulldozed into—" He attempted to brush past Cullen, the older man caught him by the arm. "Take your hands off me!"

"You stay where you are!" stormed Cullen. "Until you can—"

"If you lay your hands on me once more, Mr. Cullen, I'll... don't you forget I know what this means! I'll have you—"

"Oh, your law!" Cullen snorted it contemptuously. "For God's sake, don't snivel about it... stand up and take it like a man. If you've got any manhood in you! For a law student you're... well, don't try to run away from it, then... Are you going to tell him, or am I?"

The answer was delayed; Cullen swung around to Hilliard. "Then I'll tell you myself. Know what this boy's been saying about you? Coming up to us when you're not here, and trying to knife you when you're not looking?"

Hilliard, who had been standing paralyzed, found voice.

"Why, I can guess," he said, curiously calm. "And don't be harsh with him, Mr. Cullen. As a matter of fact—"

Angela had sprung between them; Hilliard saw that her cheeks were tear-stained.

"It's nothing but jealousy!" she cried vehemently. "He's said horrible things about you! He's always saying things about you! He said—"

"Angela!" Cullen almost fairly shouted it. "I tell you, this is my house, and I won't have any more of this infernal nonsense in it! Hear me? I've had all the nonsense I'm going to stand from anybody! Rufus, you stay right there! Angela, you keep quiet!" He turned to Hilliard. PROHIBITION AND MORTALITY

The large number of deaths recently caused by the drinking of wood alcohol should not, says the Journal of the American Medical Association (Chicago), lead the public to overlook the important drop in the death rate from certain causes that has followed the legal prohibition of alcoholic beverages. It goes on: "Recent statistics show that for July, August and September, 1919, the number of deaths in Boston from alcoholism amounted to only seven as compared with 31, 46, 38 and 34 for the corresponding period of the four preceding years. Similarly accidents diminished from 152 in 1915, 176 in 1916, 197 in 1917 and 151 in 1918, to 112 for the corresponding three months of 1919. Suicides also diminished to a very marked degree. On the other hand, homicides showed no material decrease, a fact that has been noticed in other cities. It seems probable, however, that certain unusual factors are at work to increase the number of murders. As is usual after a great war, familiarity with science and readiness to resort to such means are circumstances that must be reckoned with during the slow return to law and order. The diminution in the deaths from alcoholism, accident and suicides that has occurred in Boston, has been observed in many other large American cities and the saving of life from these causes probably far exceeds the increased number of deaths from wood alcohol."

swindler! Trying to class you with fake promoters and mixing sharks! Yes—that's what he did! You! And look at him! Look at him! I want to tell you, Hilliard, it'll take more than his say-so to start anything around here! Don't you open your mouth, Rufus . . . you had your chance and you wouldn't take it! And I want to tell you right here and right now—"

"Wait a minute," Hilliard was dandy; the only quiet member of the quartette. "There's no use in telling all the neighbors just yet." He regarded Waring kindly. "Do you mind repeating precisely what you did say, Rufus? Don't you think I'm entitled to that much?"

The boy flushed agonizingly; he was the accuser, and yet he couldn't meet Hilliard's eyes. It wasn't guilt; it was mere intellectual inferiority; and yet it gave exactly the opposite impression.

"Well," he said desperately, "I know hearsay evidence is no good, so I got it first hand—in your own room in the Onondaga, didn't I? You won't deny that, will you? I didn't just pick up rumors—I got it from you. Didn't I go there and ask you questions, and didn't you give me the data? Show me figures and everything? And I told Mr. Cullen the very next day, it didn't look good to me." His voice rose stridently. "All right, I'll say to him, and I'll say it to you, and I'll say it to anybody that'll listen to me! It didn't look good to me then, and it doesn't now. I told him you acted darned funny about it. And just now I've been telling him I don't believe it's straight. You're too damned sketchy about it, and it's got all the earmarks of a bum promotion! There . . . Cullen!"

The omission of the prefix to the father of his idol was the worst insult he could conceive.

Cullen's hand was still on Hilliard's shoulder and it was Hilliard whom he addressed, explosively, and with that particular sort of muffled fury which rises best from a set of circumstances not thoroughly understood.

"What this is all about is beyond me! Only if this law minknow has gone as far as this . . . We've got to get at the bottom of it . . . You know that as well as I do, Hilliard, naturally. The boy's as wild as a hawk. Heaven knows how far he'd go outside. This has got to be cleared up! We've got to pound some sense into him. We—"

Hilliard was smiling vacuously; now that the blow had actually fallen, and the complaint officially lodged, he felt deliciously relaxed, content. Before he could contrive a reply Waring was strident again.

"Yes," the student's voice was thin with acidity. "Yes, you think you're pretty smart—all of you. Don't you? I come in here to do you a kindness that anybody else, it seems to me would take as a favor, and you and Angela jump all over me—why doesn't he deny it? That's what I want to know! Why doesn't he say something?"

Cullen looked at Hilliard and made a swift deduction, and spoke it. "He's waiting for the rest of it. Go on—you're only half through the yarn you told us."

"Oh, very well," Waring gathered courage. "You can have all you want—maybe more than you want. You'd have had it sooner if you hadn't started yelling at me. I know what I'm talking about; you people don't seem to realize I'm in the law! I don't go off half-cocked. I wrote to a law firm in Butte, Montana, that's what I did. I found out what was the biggest firm there, and I wrote 'em a letter. They answered it, too. I got my information right from the ground. I've got a letter that says—"

Cullen swayed forward, his hand outstretched, palm-upward, in a direct challenge of Waring's truthfulness.

"Where is it?"

The boy withdrew a step and stammered: "I left it home."

"Oh, you did?" Cullen's laugh was ringing. "That's likely!"

"Yes, that's exactly what I did! Think I'd bring an original letter out of my office—let it out of my hands until it's time to make it of record? Not on your life! I've got it all right. It says the Silverbow Mining corporation owns some acreage, fast enough, but there isn't a mine on it—"

Cullen vented his abridgment of rage on the empty air.

"Well, who in the devil ever said there was?"

"Why . . . didn't you?" The appeal was to Hilliard; and it was in a tone of astonishment which would have been ludicrous if there hadn't been tragedy behind it.

"No!" Hilliard shook his head. "You can't accuse me of that, at least. . . . The only mine we ever mentioned was one in prospect. I always said it was a prospect, with an old shaft on it. It didn't? And so it is! But an old shaft isn't a producing mine, necessarily. And—please let him finish, Mr. Cullen!"

"Well . . . The boy had twin disks of hectic flame in his cheeks. "That's only a detail, anyway . . . they said it was . . . undeveloped . . . they said the shaft had been abandoned more than two years ago, because it wasn't worth much of anything—"

Cullen's hands were closing and unclosing appreciatively.

"For Heaven's sake, who ever said it wasn't two years ago! We all know that! Give us some news, young man, give us some news!" Waring was breathing hard, and his interest had switched to Angela, who stood adamant. Indeed, he was suddenly transferred to the status of a suppliant rather than that of a prosecuting witness.

"Well . . . they said it was offered . . . two years ago . . . to anybody who'd take it . . . for ten thousand dollars . . . and nobody'd take it as a gift . . ."

"Oh, good Lord!" Cullen was near to bursting. "Doesn't the fool know what a prospect is? And still he—"

"And . . . and the land next to it was . . . had a mine on it, the XING mine, that's in pretty fair shape, but that didn't signify anything. . . . He paused for a moment. "And there hasn't been any work done on it, to speak of, for two years. . . . And the corporation report I got shows that a fellow named Martin Harmon's the president of it, and Harmon's a cheap Wall street man in New York. The Butte people don't consider him reliable. And I've written to him four times—and he won't answer."

"Ah!" said Hilliard, startled.

"Well?" Cullen repeated his challenge.

"That's all." He gazed beseechingly at Angela, who smiled and turned her head away.

"All?" Cullen breathed stertorously. "And with a flimsy lot of rot like that you've got the unmitigated gall to start a slanderous story like this about Henry Hilliard! You've got the nerve to—"

"The astonishing part of it," interposed Hilliard, with coolness which astonished even himself, "is that every single item of it is true! Don't blame him, Mr. Cullen. It's true—every word."

"It's True—Every Word."

Cullen shook himself. "Of course it's true! Isn't it what you've told us yourself, in a different way? It's the telling of it that counts!"

"Now listen to me a moment," Hilliard was impressively serious; the way to the denouement was opening clear before him. He need only offer himself for judgment, and the future would take care of itself. "My purpose in coming up here this afternoon was to talk to you about this same property, Mr. Cullen. . . . I had some rather important things to tell you about it. But in view of this new attitude of Waring's, I'm going to act differently. This won't stop here, and I prefer to have somebody look into it before it's any worse. I'm going to put myself in your hands, Rufus and Angela, I want you both to witness this."

Mr. Cullen, I'm going to give you a check for eight thousand dollars; it's my whole balance at the Trust and Deposit company, less what I'll need to live on for a few days. I'm going to turn over to you twenty thousand shares in the Silverbow Mining corporation to keep for me—it's my own personal holding. I'm going to turn over to you my contract with the mining corporation, which calls for the delivery of all the rest of the corporate stock on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars, of which we've already paid sixty-two. I'll give you the corporation's receipt to me for that amount. And I give you my word of honor not to step four outside of the city of Syracuse, nor to be for one single hour out of your reach until you've investigated the whole proposition from beginning to end. I insist that you make that investigation. That's on condition that Rufus won't mention this again, either here or anywhere else, until he's collected the facts! And I'll tell you right now Rufus has given you the truth!"

Some Superstitions.

The breaking of a looking glass is, with some people, the occasion of a gloomy foreboding, and the unlucky person who does it is supposed to be doomed to seven years of bad luck. Downy feathers were formerly considered as heralds of sickness, yet fashion has introduced them into house decorations.

Literally Stumbled on Riches.

About a quarter of a century ago two prospectors in the husband of Western Australia had put up their tent for the night and determined to trek back to Perth next morning, as their horses had proved fruitless. One of them was aroused from sleep by the post-hoof of his horse, picked up just outside the tent and, going out to see what was the matter, he tripped in the darkness over a Boulder, which proved on examination to be an ancient pure gold. That was the beginning of Coolgardie.

Political Notes Of Interest To Women

WOMAN EXPLAINS WHY SHE STANDS BY REPUBLICANS

Writing in the Woman Citizen, Mrs. Frank W. Dodson, of Des Moines, Iowa, says:

"Yes, I can tell you in three hundred words why I chose the Republican party. I could use three thousand words and then not give all my reasons, but here are a few:

"With a very definite idea in mind as to what I could and would do with my vote I struggled years to help bring about the enfranchisement of the colored woman.

"This accomplished and the question of party arising, I find what? First, that I had to secure my enfranchisement not because of, but in spite of the Democratic party.

"I find that in the matter of Child Labor, the handmaiden of illiteracy, there are fifty times as many young children employed in industry in Democratic States as are employed in Republican ones.

"I find the percentage of illiteracy, according to the U. S. census of 1910, running from 29 per cent in Democratic Louisiana to 1.7 per cent in Republican Iowa, with statistics denying the statement that the high per cent of illiteracy in the South is brought about by the ignorant colored vote.

"I find that seven only of the Democratic States have a compulsory education law, and that in some of these the 'entire session' is so short and the exemptions so absurd as to make the law a mere pretense.

"I find that while a majority of the states have mothers' pensions and while millions of dollars pass each year into the hands of deserving mothers for the care of their children in their own homes, just six Democratic States have this law.

"I find that only three Democratic States in the nation grant to mothers equal guardianship with fathers over the children of them both, and that in two Democratic States a father can still will away his unborn child.

"I join the Republican party and lend what little strength I have to help it push still further forward the legislation in which I am interested and which I feel is of vital importance to the welfare of the nation."

WIFE NOT CHATTEL SAYS CONGRESSMAN FROM OLD BAY STATE

It is high time to get away from the old idea that the wife is the chattel of the husband, Representative Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts, told the House Immigration Committee, in urging enactment of a law under which American women, marrying aliens and remaining in this country, would retain their citizenship after adoption of the suffrage amendment.

Mr. Rogers declared his measure did not protect wealthy "American title hunters," adding that he was not interested in extending the right of citizenship "to women who think so little of it that they go abroad to live."

In pointing out that his measure would not give the right of citizenship to an alien woman marrying an American, Mr. Rogers said this was done so that to be naturalized "a woman would have to go through the same machinery with the man."

Mrs. Maude Wood Park, president of the National League of Women Voters, endorsed the Rogers bill.

Mrs. Cornelly and Miss Ethel Minds, of Ramey, were shopping in town yesterday.

Miss Violet Bloom is confined to her home on Spruce street, with scarlet fever.

A. G. Leonardson, of DuBois, transacted business in town yesterday.

WOMAN'S CLUB CARRYING ON WORK OF TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

The committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis has been acting in conjunction with the local dispensary staff of the state department of health and supplemented their activities wherever possible. The program laid down by the larger organization has been adhered to as closely as local conditions have permitted up to this time. Realizing the suffering entailed to both patient and family in having to take advanced cases of tuberculosis to some far off sanatorium, the object now being striven for is to have the county authorities provide pavilions for the case of such cases where they are at all times within easy access for their family or friends.

The state sanatoriums are being given over to patients in the earlier stages of the disease. Elementary schools and schools for vocational training have been established at these institutions in which the patient may work while he waits for a cure instead of wait while he coughs.

Besides the general education they are trained in trades suited to their strength such as chair caning, gardening etc. A trip to Cresson or any one of the state sanatoria is a lesson in the modern methods of caring for tuberculosis sufferers.

The local committee for Prevention of Tuberculosis of the Woman's Club of Clearfield is directing its efforts along the following lines, viz:

(a) A health education for every child by means of the "Modern Health Crusade" movement which they hope to introduce into every school.

(b) Concentrated effort to bring pressure to bear upon the powers that be in order to prevail upon them to erect a pavilion for the care of our own advanced cases of tuberculosis. Make public demand so intense that they can no longer postpone action in the matter.

(c) Establishment of supply closets at the local clinic rooms where those without means may be provided with necessary supplies such as bedding, mattresses, pillows, cots, oil-stoves, roller and cue chairs, sleeping porches, clothing, etc. After being properly fumigated certain of these articles can be loaned to patient after patient for their use and comfort.

(d) Visiting cases brought to their attention, investigating same and under proper circumstances directing relief thru an emergency.

(e) Educational work wherever possible.

Respectfully submitted,

RUB! RUB! RUB!

Every week of your life—52 weeks each year—you spend hours over a task that is hard, weary, drudging hours. You rub, rub, rub, in a steaming hot room and you rub away the sweetness of your disposition and you rub holes in your clothes.

And Mrs. Housewife, you don't need to do it at all. There's a machine waiting for you at our store—a wonderful

Thor Electric Washing Machine

With an All-Metal, Full Swinging Safety Wringer

that will rob washday of its terrors, bring back happiness and turn blue Monday into "Sunny Monday." Good Housekeeping Institute tested this machine and approved it. A good sized washing can be done in two hours—done perfectly, spotlessly and beautifully. All you need to do is to hang out the clothes. Clothes last longer—they're not rubbed to pieces. A clean, white, maple cylinder, easily handled does the work. There are no belts to catch and tear clothes, no greasy oil cups. The electric current costs two cents per hour—think of it—and the machine practically cleans itself. Four hundred thousand housewives in America depend on a Thor Washing Machine and use it every week. You may have one. We have arranged a system of easy payments.
